

Medical Marijuana Forum

You Don't Have to Get High to Get Help!

Medical marijuana is a hot topic these days. With medical cannabinoid prescriptions becoming more readily available, along with the Federal Government's plans to legalize marijuana for recreational use in 2018, the controversy has incited discussions and opinions from both sides of the argument.

Join Natural Health Services panelists Dr. Mark Kimmins, MD FRCSC FACS FASCRS, Business Development Manager Greg Benson, and local seniors as they discuss the benefits of using cannabis when conventional medicine isn't enough.

Medical Marijuana is recommended by some doctors as treatment that can reduce nausea and vomiting during chemotherapy, improve appetite, reduce chronic pain and muscle spasms, and potentially improve cognitive and balance abilities in mature brains.

Discover the benefits, availability and variety of methods of consuming this natural plant, and the legal implications of both medical and recreational marijuana.
